Subject: Comments on the Boardman to Hemingway power project

To whom it may concern,

While we see the value of adding to the national power grid, we don't see the value of siting such a project on private property. BLM has tried to implement a private property siting policy ever since this process has begun. Idaho Power is just following the path of least resistance, and that path is usurping private property rights along the way aided by BLM's policies. We don't understand these policies, but we do understand working all our lives to attain a beautiful piece of the American Dream just to have a private company and a government agency tear that out from under us just because they want to save money or an imagined loss of habitat they say will cause an animal to go extinct.

Do try to understand that we are not lawyers, consultants, or politicians. We are merely citizens of the United States of America where pursuing life, liberty, and justice used to mean something. As public servants, it is you who should be protecting us from this travesty.
