The proposed routing for these lines passes near our home. We receive our television only via broadcast television received via antenna. Cable and satellite are not an option for our location. I am concerned that this line will not only destroy the visible integrity of our landscape, but will also interfere with the only television reception that is available to us. Why can these lines not be buried? That seems to me to be a much more protected mode of installation that would minimize the impact on residents of this region.
