Sirs:

Recently I became aware of the Boardman to Hemingway Transmission line (B2H).As a long time member of the Oregon California Trails organization I want to express my concern about the project.

I am particularly concerned about the area at Flagstaff Hill, Baker City, Oregon. The eye, ear or mind will be unable to recreate what the pioneers experienced in that area if the transmission line is placed as proposed. While the undergrounding of the line or the Timber Canyon Alternatives will be costly, ultimately one of these choices is the only way to save the experience at Flagstaff Hill.

Having traveled the Oregon Trail and other historic trails, the value of the experience cannot be exaggerated. The feeling of openness, space and the very heart of being an American is the result of these opportunities. Please don't destroy this for future citizens.
